

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a horrible example of the abuse of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get attempts to hijack the democratic process

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
